ACT I

Every morning Coppélia, daughter of Coppélius, sits reading outside the window of her balcony. Swanilda suspects her fiancé, Franz, to be one of her admirers. She superstitiously asks a straw of wheat if Franz loves her but the answer seems to be no. Swanilda notices that Coppélius has dropped a key. With her friends, she decides to visit his mysterious house...

ACT II

In Coppélius' house, Swanilda salutes Coppélia but the strange girl remains motionless: she is a life-sized doll! Suddenly Coppélius bursts into the room and Swanilda hides behind the curtains. A few minutes later, Coppélius seizes Franz who enters the house using a ladder. Franz implores the old man and confesses his love for Coppélia. Coppélius believes he can draw energy from Franz to bring Coppélia to life...

ACT III

Franz knows a joke has been played on him and thinks nothing more of Coppélia. He's to be married to Swanilda before the Lord of the manor. At once there is a stir among the crowd. Coppélius comes to demand justice; they have ridiculed him and have broken everything in his house. Who is going to pay? The Lord of the manor throws a purse to him and gives the signal for the festivities to begin.
